NORFOLK LOCAL NEWS.

THE PETTIS INTERVIEW.

Cards From Messrs. Whitehead and Martin.

The card of Maj. D. Humphreys in the Pilot of yesterday compels notice at my hands. The card in question is based on a published interview in THE VIRGINIAN of the 29th with Mayor Pettit on the subject of his proposed resignation.

On the evening of Wednesday Messrs. Joseph Martin and J. H. Tanner brought to my department in THE VIRGINIAN a very extended report of an interview with Mayor Pettit on the rumor of his resignation and the causes which led him to contemplate the same. As the report was their property, not known to me or THE VIRGINIAN, they offered it for sale to the paper exclusively or as syndicate matter. I referred them to the managing editor. As the result of a conference with him it was concluded that as Messrs. Martin and Tanner were the exclusive owners of the News in question, so much of the report as bore directly on the interview with the Mayor would be purchased (this agreement excluded fifteen pages of the article prepared by them). Provided however, that the purported interview should be submitted to Mayor Pettit for his endorsement, and then to be published with a simple introduction.

I accompanied Mr. Martin to the residence of Mayor Pettit. He was informed of the object of the visit, I stating that THE VIRGINIAN had been offered the article, prepared by Messrs. Martin and Tanner, and that it would be bought provided the statements were correct. Mr. Martin read the article to Mayor Pettit, who stated that it was substantially correct, but that he did not desire to be quoted as saying a good many of the things reported, as it would tend to stir up more bad feeling and there was enough already. The whole matter was talked over with the Mayor.

After the interview Mr. Martin returned to THE VIRGINIAN office and prepared the interview which appeared in THE VIRGINIAN. I did not write a line of it. It was read to me by Mr. Martin, O. K'd by me as city editor and sent to the printers.

It appeared to me to conform in all respects to the instructions received from Mayor Pettit and the editor and owner of the paper. Mr. Martin is a well known newspaper man, who has written for every newspaper in the city.

I wish now to refer to comments in Major Humphreys card which I believe have implied reference to me, as the local editor of THE VIRGINIAN, on whom the responsibility rests for the character of the matter which appears in that department of the paper. His card is a tissue of slanders from beginning to end, false in every particular, malicious and premeditated, absolutely wanting in justification.

Reckless as this man is at all times in handling facts, he is more than ever so on this occasion. With the venom of a miserable reptile he has time and again driven his poisonous fangs into the flesh of the young newspaper men of this city, many of whom never did him any harm. He is a wholesale calumniator, and the character of no newspaper man in Norfolk would be safe who happened to incur his displeasure, if a half dozen people believe his insane vapors. He is a fanatic of the first water, blatant and unreasonable in all his statements, and in spite of years, which should give a little common sense, is worthy only of contempt. I have been the object of his malicious attacks repeatedly during the past twelve months and I stood them till patience ceased to be a virtue.

The report that he would be selected to succeed Mayor Pettit in case of the latter's resignation, is to me as it is to the community, a piece of startling news. No matter what may be my opinions of the Prohibition Council or the Prohibition party, Maj. Humphreys may rest assured that I never thought that he could be elected to any position of responsibility, much less that of Mayor. The people need not fear that this calamity may befall them.

I regret that his repeated assaults upon me through the press has made this reply necessary. Were the newspapers read only in Norfolk I would be content to pass by anything that this old man with a bitter heart and diseased mind might say, feeling confident that nobody would be influenced by him, but outside of Norfolk he is not known and his malicious slanders would be received with a measure of credit.

JOHN WHITEHEAD.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In the Pilot of yesterday morning appeared a card signed by Major D. Humphreys which, in my opinion, is the most malicious and uncalculated attack on both my professional and personal reputation, though more directly pointed at other newspaper men.

It so happened that I secured an interview with Mayor Pettit on Tuesday afternoon.

In this interview the Mayor not only declared that he intended to resign, but he gave me a detailed statement of his differences with the other members of the Police Board and certain "alleged political leaders."

Among other things the Mayor stated in the most emphatic language that he would have resigned long before this had it not been that he feared Major Humphreys would be elected his successor.

He referred to Major Humphreys in the most uncomplimentary terms, and also made this statement:

"When I resign and Major Humphreys is elected by the extreme radical element of the Prohibition party, I wish to utter the warning that he, with go grease and indigestion—that's why physicians condemn modern lard. Hand in hand go health and Cottolene—that's why Cottolene has received the endorsement of the leading lights of the medical profession. When you feel that it would be a pleasure to eat any kind of pastry or fried food, without fear of indigestion, get Cottolene. See that the trade mark—steer's head in cotton-plait wreath—is on every pail.

The
N. K. Fairbank Company,
ST. LOUIS AND CHICAGO.

those two things that constitute themselves the Board of Police Commissioners in Norfolk, will within a week, by their actions, cause the big-geat riot this city has ever known."

This is the interview which was presented to Mayor Pettit for endorsement, in case any was needed, on Wednesday night, and which he refers to in his card which was published yesterday in the Pilot as "An article which they had written and emanating from me."

This interview, coupled with a brief introduction based on it, was read to the Mayor at his residence by myself in the hearing of Mr. John Whitehead, city editor of THE VIRGINIAN, to which paper I took the story.

The Mayor admitted to Mr. Whitehead and myself, that the interview as read was correct, but he would prefer that we should simply publish the fact that he intended to resign, and the causes thereof, as emanating from him, and give the rest of the interview as our deductions.

This is not the first time I have had to call Major Humphreys to account for his reckless juggling with the truth. On another occasion, when a secret meeting of Prohibitionists in the Third Ward was reported by me for THE VIRGINIAN, Major Humphreys took occasion to characterize the report as false and misleading.

I set myself straight with the public, at that time, had to prove my report correct.

I am now ready to make affidavit before any judge in the city that the article published in THE VIRGINIAN is true in every detail, and the information contained therein was secured from Mayor Pettit. Furthermore, the interview in its original form was deemed by Mr. M. Glennan, editor and proprietor of THE VIRGINIAN, as altogether too sensational in its tone, and by his instructions, I toned down the language of the Mayor.

[Signed] J. H. MARTIN.

OUR OLDEST THEATER.

Relic of the Early American Stage Being Torn Down in Savannah.

A building believed to be the oldest theater in America is now being demolished at Savannah to give place to a new amusement structure with a larger seating capacity and all the modern improvements. The Savannah theater was built in 1818 and has remained up to the present day practically without a change. During all of this time it has witnessed the growth of Savannah from a small and ill paved town to one of the finest cities in the world, and war and pestilence have raged about it without altering its original character.

There are many traditions connected with the old structure now being torn down, and it has harbored within its walls all of the great theatrical lights who have made the history of the American stage. When rummaging through the rooms of the old structure, workmen came upon a spinning wheel covered with dust and worm eaten. The old spinning wheel excited much discussion and curiosity. People were at a loss to account for the presence of this article of domestic use in such a place until some remembered that such a wheel had been used in scenes of "Faust" and "Martha."

Then it turned out that this was the wheel which had been used by Jenny Lind when she sang in the opera of "Martha" at this theater. It had been brought to America from the Haymarket theater in London 76 years ago, and having been an old one at the time is believed to be at least 100 years old.

Nobody knows who built the old theater. It is known to be at least 77 years of age, but its early days are shrouded in uncertainty. Its late manager says that in his opinion it is the oldest theater in the world standing in its original condition.

It has been impossible for years to get any one to sleep in the theater because of a popular superstition that it was haunted. On account of this absence of a watchman a queer thing happened many years ago which is still related in Savannah as mysterious. The manager, coming one morning to the theater, found in the center dressing room a hole about two feet in diameter burned right through the floor. There was no other evidence of fire, and an examination showed that there had been no means of ingress to the building through the night.—New York World.

THE UPS AND DOWNS IN LIFE.

The latch string still hangs out and you're as welcome as the genial rays of the sun. Father Time has dealt kindly with us since we spoke to you last—lightnings without and fears within—of the earth—earthly.

"Let fate do her worst,
There are reliefs of joy,
Bright dreams of the past,
Which time cannot destroy,
You may break, you may ruin the vase if you will,
But the scent of the rose will hang round it still."

Tom Moore knew a good thing when he saw it—and bargain seekers have been fully rewarded by their visit here. Memories will cluster around the home altars, when they realize how far a five dollars went here.

The circus has passed—the band played—the lion roared—but did not bite. See the song of the Shirt in our east window—woeful prices—pity the dear woman whose lot was "stich, stich."
